Personally appeared before me this 8th day of November, 1888, J. B. McGuffin, Superintendent of Mail and Delivery Department, and W. H. Newman, Foreman Press-Room of THE WORLD, who, being sworn, do depose and say that the foregoing statement is true and correct.

A Record Never Before Achieved by an American Newspaper.

BRICE GIVES IT UP.

THE EVENING WORLD greets President Benjamin Harrison. There has never been any real doubt of the result since the close of the polls last Tuesday, and the talk about doubtful States and errors and frauds in Brooklyn have been mere efforts to ease the descent from power of the defeated party.

Well, that is all right. As the stevedore said, when his little wife beat him: "It doesn't hurt me and it does her a heap of good." The "claims" of the Democratic Committee did not hurt Harrison and gave the Committee some satisfaction. But it is now all over. Chairman Brice kindly concedes the election to the Republicans, and Harrison may commence the preparation of his inaugural.

As usual in such cases the "doubtful" States mostly turn up on the winning side. Harrison has gained a great victory, and President Cleveland's famous message turned out to be the best "protection" the Republican party ever secured.

THE OUTLOOK FOR CONGRESS.

There is reason to fear that the Democrats have lost control of the House of Representatives. This will be an unfortunate result for the country, if the facts confirm the present outlook. The avowed policy of the Republican party is to spend the surplus and to continue high taxation in order to accumulate more. If the party obtains control of the House, in addition to the Senate and the Executive, there will be no obstruction to this policy.

The Democrats have not done all they ought to have done with their majorities in the House. They have frittered away their power and wasted their time. They made no earnest effort to legislate against the growing and dangerous evil of Trusts. But a Democratic majority in the House would now be a safeguard for the country, and it is to be hoped that full returns will show that it has not been lost with the Presidency.

THE COUNTRY SAFE.

The country is safe. A political revolution has been accomplished in a single day, on which, from 6 o'clock in the morning till 4 in the afternoon twelve million people were engaged in a close and bloodless contest. In that space of time the rulers of the Government have been changed. It has been decided to give into different hands from those which have distributed the Federal patronage for the past four years the gift of about 180,000 offices. The White House has been let for four years from next March to a different tenant from the one who has occupied it since March, 1885. Another "first lady of the land" will rule over its domestic affairs. Office-seekers and power-worshippers will bend before a new power. Newspapers will praise a new White House divinity. Yet the country is safe. Business will go on as before. The wheels of government will run as smoothly as ever. The Republic will lose none of its power or dignity at home or abroad.

What a wonderful country this is and what a remarkable people are the American people! Their equal is not to be found on the face of the globe. Where else could the head of the nation and all its honors and patronage be so completely changed without a sanguinary revolution? Where else is a people intelligent enough to vote on the question of such a change independently and in perfect good humor, and to accept the result cheerfully and hopefully, whatever the verdict of the majority may have been? No three hearty cheers for the United States and three more for the American people. "Four, four, four years more," is the cry now as before election, and four years after that, for centuries to come, whoever may win or lose. The country is safe.

OUR AUTOGRAPH COLLECTION.

A LONG PURSE.

If It Belonged to You and Contained $1,000,000

WHAT WOULD YOU DO WITH IT?

Many Interesting Uses to Which People Would Put a Million.

We Get Plenty of Abuse.
To the Editor of The Evening World:
I would simply buy up much trash as THE EVENING WORLD might hire some cartman to cart it down to the East River and throw it overboard.
COMMON SENSE.

We Must "Tell the Truth."
To the Editor of The Evening World:
I should like to see you tell the truth to you to call it, and publishing false letters about the Republican party. I would use you for $10,000 very quickly.
CHICKY.

Would Be Generous.
To the Editor of The Evening World:
If I was fortunate enough to be the possessor of $1,000,000 I would start in business, put the rest in a bank (which would be about $750,000) and would devote the interest of that amount to charitable institutions.
M. MARKIN, 252 Division street, city.

Assisted Emigration.
To the Editor of The Evening World:
I should spend a large portion of it in assisting persons who are making good wages in this country and continually speaking against it back to the countries from which they came.
THEODORA.
Brooklyn, Nov. 6.

Against Indiana Dudley.
To the Editor of The Evening World:
I would give THE EVENING WORLD $25,000 to defend itself against that alleged arch hoodie distributor and vote buyer, Indiana Dudley. Would use the same amount to prosecute him and his gang. After seeing them railroaded to Sing Sing, I would quit work and enjoy the rest of my life in ease and comfort, not forgetting to help the needy as much as I possibly can.
ENGLISHMAN.
East Ninety-sixth street, city.

To Stop the Pricing Mania.

To the Editor of The Evening World:
If I had $1,000,000 I would build and stock a large dry-goods emporium in or about Union Square, New York, for the amusement and pastime of New York ladies who seem to have an ever-growing mania for inspecting and prying dry goods, without the slightest intention of ever buying, and to depriving employers of valuable time when bona-fide purchasers are anxious to be waited upon. Besides, the job-like patience of clerks would not have to be so often tested.
D. M. R.
34 Oak street, Jersey City, N. J., Nov. 6.

Help for Hard-Working Women.

To the Editor of The Evening World:
I would start an endowment fund that would assist honest respectable women to live. I believe there are many women who are struggling to live an honorable life who have great difficulty in securing for themselves the necessities of life, with no kind of helping hand near to aid them, while our churches are preaching "charity" to foreign missions. Women of our W. C. T. U. are uniting in their devotion to the temperance cause for the man and boy. People of wealth are leaving large endowments for hospitals, for the education of boys, and large donations for the gallery of art. Who will be the first millionaire to assist in establishing a society that may have in its treasury fund a relief for an honest, respectable, self-supporting woman that will enable her to make a start and thereby support herself.

A Passionate Declaration.

(From These Ditties.)

Young Mr. Wallstreet (kneeling)—I would marry you, my love. Be mine, oh, be mine!
Young Lady (confused)—Oh, Mr. Wallstreet, this is so sudden—let me reflect.
Wallstreet (impatiently)—No; not an instant. Decide at once; I have other matches in view.

Coroner Messenger Was There.

An allegation has been made that in the case of Thomas Mulligan, who was shot on Election Day, no Coroner could be found to take the man's post-mortem statement. On the contrary, Coroner Messenger was on duty that day, attending strictly to business, and he took the statements of Mulligan and of Wm. F. Peers in the case.

The Ivy Leaf Social Club.

At a meeting held at 308 Third avenue an association was formed, to be known as the Ivy Leaf Social Club. The following officers were installed: President, Mr. E. Dockery; Vice-President, F. Vogt; Secretary, W. Hill; Treasurer, M. Gross.

Amateur Football Games.

The Atlas beat the Orioles, 8 to 4.
The Amazons eleven beat the Invincibles at Central Park.

WORLDLINGS.

The medical library attached to the office of the Surgeon-General of the army at Washington, is said to be the largest collection of medical books in the world. It contains nearly one hundred thousand volumes and a great number of pamphlets.

The Emperor of Austria, who is a great smoker, apparently has very eccentric ideas of what constitutes a good cigar. The weed he likes best is of the inferior kind popular among the Viennese cabmen, and as a usual thing the worse it is the better he likes it.

Mr. William Morris, the London Socialist, is equally well known as a poet, politician and decorator. His latest affection is a revival of the obsolete art of illuminating manuscripts, in which he has produced some remarkably beautiful specimens of work.

MRS. LEONARD'S VOTE IN.

WAS SHE TRADED OFF TO OPPOSITION CANDIDATES?

Corrected Returns show That But Eight Ballots Were Cast in Her Favor—Mrs. Leonard in 1889—The Vote by Assembly Districts.

Corrected returns show that the vote of Mrs. Cynthia Leonard, candidate of the Equal Rights party for Mayor, reaches eight. By Assembly districts it is as follows:
Seventh Assembly District..... 8
Thirteenth Assembly District..... 1
Eighteenth Assembly District..... 1
Nineteenth Assembly District..... 1
Twentieth Assembly District..... 1
Twenty-second Assembly District..... 1

Total..... 8
Several election districts in the Twenty-fourth Ward to be heard from which may make a little difference.
Mrs. Leonard pleasantly received an EVENING WORLD reporter when he called at 156 West Twenty-third street to talk with her about the election.

Mrs. Leonard lives in the front room to the right as you enter from the door, and in answer to the reporter's knock on her door a voice sang out "Come" from inside.

The reporter entered the room, but was surprised to see no one.
"Take a seat," said the same voice, and the reporter's hair began to raise. No one was present. All was quiet.

The reporter began to scrutinize the place closely, and his examination revealed a room in the back end of the room. Pictures of pretty faces and fairy figures, and many fantastic things were on the walls.
The reporter looked towards the screen just in time to see a tall woman with short, light, fluffy hair come out from behind it.

Mrs. Leonard wore a brown dress, cut low in the neck and with gold-colored trimmings attached.
She seated herself at a writing desk, and then said in answer to a question:
"I only know what you know, and in answer to the reporter's knock on her door a voice sang out 'Come' from inside."

"How many votes do you count on?" asked the reporter.
"Well, I ought to have over a thousand, and perhaps two thousand," she answered, confidentially.

"Was there any trading done by your party?" There is a rumor that you were knifed for Belva Lockwood.
"Oh, no! You have got that wrong," said Mrs. Leonard. "I had many offers to support me for Mayor if I would only turn my strength for Harrison. I would not do that. My efforts all went to defeat Mayor Hewitt, and I am perfectly satisfied as long as he is not re-elected. You know I consider Mayor Hewitt an enemy to poverty."

"I did not have any tickets in the field. I wanted to be posted over the names of the other Mayoralty candidates and I was," she said.
"You mean the names of some of Grant's and lots of Hewitt's," exclaimed Mrs. Leonard cheerfully.

"How do I like Harrison? Oh, he is good enough for a change. Will I ever be satisfied as long as there is a man in office. We were not organized well in this State. Our candidate for Governor, Grant, was a failure. I am attending a sick brother, and then we have had to deal with that horrid Hamilton Willcox! Oh! Oh! Oh! Mrs. Leonard heaped all sorts of imprecations on the head of the fellow.

"You mean the Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Equal Rights party, do you not?" the reporter asked.
"He calls himself so, but he is nothing more nor less than Hamilton Willcox, first, second, last and all the time!" emphatically declared Mrs. Leonard.

There has been difficulty between these two Equal Rights candidates for some time. Mr. Willcox published a letter recently denouncing Mrs. Leonard, and setting forth that she was not the candidate of the E. R. party for Mayor at all.

Mrs. Leonard told the reporter that Mr. Willcox had defeated her ticket, and said all sorts of things about him.
During the interview a friend of Mrs. Leonard's dropped in and told her that she wanted a good fat office, whereupon both women laughed heartily. It was apparently a good joke. The other lady is a poetess, whose manuscript she brought to the kitchen stove, but she did not want it printed.

"Call me a crank! Call me anything you please," said she, pleadingly, but don't publish my name as a Democratic writer, and I will sign myself as a woman who works for suffrage plank and want to work quietly for the cause."

Mrs. Leonard's pretty daughter came in, and said she would appear as the "sarcastic daughter," and that she really was sarcastic, and then the three ladies began talking over their bright prospects for '92, but at this point the reporter silently stole away.

Dr. Hostetter's Funeral.

Dr. David Hostetter, the millionaire financier and manufacturer, who died in this city Tuesday, was throughout the greater portion of his busy life identified with the progress and prosperity of Pittsburgh. His funeral will take place this Friday. A man of keen judgment, he never hesitated to embark in the largest enterprises which commended themselves to his sound sense, and his railroad investments showed that he was both public-spirited and plucky. Before him when he was so energetic in his business career, there was a man in the same large and generous mould.

Ceasty Ice Cream for Somebody.

Mrs. Lucie A. Moore, of Clinton place, has obtained an award of $500 in a suit against Richard and John J. Reed, restaurateurs at 76 Broadway. Mrs. Moore ordered ice cream at the restaurant on June 17, and was served with a dish which she claimed was not fit to eat. She was held by force and taken to the police station, and the ice cream was brought to recover $2,500 damages for assault and battery.

The Legion Will Parade.

The John J. O'Brien Legion will parade this evening starting from No. 248 Grand street in honor of the election of Harrison and Morton. It will be reviewed by the National, State and County Republican committees at their respective headquarters.

Well Able to Foot Them.

(From the Boston Courier.)
"You're married, I hear, Jack."
"Yes, married, my boy, got married a month ago."
"But I thought you circumstances?"
"Oh, that's all right, my boy. She foots the bills."
"She foots the bills?"
"Yes, Chicago any you know."

The Proper Thing.

(From the Boston Courier.)
St. Peter—Who are you?
Applicant—I'm a bum.
St. Peter—Well, go and get yourself washed and your hair combed and call again, and we'll see what we can do for you.

Notes of Labor.

The Food Producers' Section had scarcely gotten over the effects of the election last night. Delegates who had supported successful candidates were jubilant and little business was done by the section.

The Metal Workers' Section of the Central Labor Union held another of its protracted sessions last night, and when the meeting was over the Secretary said there was no more news of that nature of any special interest to the public had been given.

Exhausted Vitality.

You, reader, are suffering from exhausted nervous vitality, and it is rapidly prostrating your physical strength, energy and power. You are worn every day and every hour that the dread result will be paralysis, insanity or complete nervous and physical prostration.

How? By those strange emotions, that dull and sad feeling head, that restlessness, irritability and nervousness; by those moorish and sleepless nights, from which you wake tired and unrefreshed; by those nervous, weak and some of nervous and physical exhaustion which grow upon you more and more. These are danger signals, and not to heed them is the folly of a fool.

What is to be done? By all means use Dr. Greene's Nervine Tonic, for it will restore your lost strength and vigor, and put you again in sound health and strength. You have no idea of its wonderful tonic, strengthening and invigorating effects, its beneficial action as a nerve, brain and health restorative. You can purchase it at any drug store for one dollar per bottle, and you need not be afraid to use it, for it is purely vegetable, being made from plants and herbs, marvellous in their health-giving and strength-restoring powers.

Another thing, you can consult the famous specialist in nervous and chronic diseases, who proposes this great remedy, Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th st., New York, free of charge, personally or by letter, in regard to your case.

WIVES OF THE VICTORS.

Mrs. Harrison and Mrs. Morton, Two Handsome Women and Expert Housekeepers.

Mrs. Benjamin Harrison, wife of the President-elect, is a little woman, with large brown eyes and grayish hair. She was born in Oxford, O., and is the daughter of Dr. John W. Scott, who was formerly President of the Miami University and afterwards of the female college of the same town.

Mrs. Harrison met her husband at Oxford while he was a student in the university and she was attending the seminary. They were married when he was twenty years of age and she was somewhat less than twenty.

Besides being an expert housekeeper, the coming lady of the White House is accomplished in music and painting. She is devotedly attached to her children, of whom she has two, a married son and daughter, and to her grandchildren, who are three in number.

"She is a brilliant conversationalist, and indeed a most cultivated and beautiful woman," wrote Nellie Bly of Mrs. Harrison in "The World" of Sept. 9.

The same writer said of Mrs. Levi P. Morton, wife of the Vice-President-elect: "Mrs. Morton is handsome—undeniably handsome. She is about five feet six inches in height. She would be a little too heavy for a girl—although there are many girls as heavy—but she has a tapering waist and beautifully moulded neck and arms. Her eyes are large, blue-gray and very expressive. Her complexion is a healthy white. She can boast of her nose, and her mouth is exquisitely aristocratic. Her lips are curved and full, and every smile awakens the most babyish and bewitching dimples I have about my face."

Although Mrs. Morton's face has not one wrinkle, and her years scarcely seem to warrant it, her hair looked quite gray in the dimly lighted room.

She was born in Poughkeepsie, where her father was a lawyer, and her maiden name was Anna Livingston.

Her father was a prominent lawyer, and she was educated in the best schools of the country. She is now in New York City, where she resides with her husband and children.

Mrs. Morton is a devoted mother, and she is very fond of her children. She is also a very kind and generous person, and she is very much interested in the welfare of the poor.

Mrs. Morton is a very beautiful woman, and she is very much admired by all who know her. She is a very kind and generous person, and she is very much interested in the welfare of the poor.
